

The Great Burrito Blunder

Characters: Leo: A very hungry, slightly clumsy kid. Barnaby: Leo's mischievous cat.

It was finally lunchtime. Leo had been dreaming of his "Mega-Beef Burrito" all morning. He placed it on the kitchen table, but realized he forgot the hot sauce. "Don't move," he warned Barnaby, who was watching the burrito with suspicious intensity.

As soon as Leo turned his back, Barnaby didn't eat the burrito but he jumped on the table and gave it a playful "bap" with his paw. The burrito started to roll. It rolled off the table, landed on Leo's skateboard, and began zooming across the kitchen floor like a rocket!

Leo turned around just in time to see his lunch heading for the open back door. He lunged for it, but slipped on a rug, sending him flying. The burrito-skateboard zoomed outside, down the driveway, and straight toward a sleeping bulldog in the neighbor's yard.

Thwack! The skateboard hit a pebble and flipped. The burrito flew through the air... and landed perfectly in the bulldog's water bowl with a giant SPLASH. Leo stood in the driveway, covered in rug-burn, watching Barnaby calmly lick his paw in the window.

Imagine you are the director of a movie. Your job is to create a storyboard for this tale and share it with your actors. (Remember to sequence it correctly!!)
